WHAT GRADUATES SAY...

Inquiry and researcher mindset is not only for students. I think it is fundamentally important for everyone especially educator to constantly strive for innovation and understand knowledge and the underlying concepts of things. Since starting the D.Ed programme, the way I approach and view problems had been transformed. It also cultivated a habit of constantly looking for research and theories that might be beneficial for my students and equipping me with the skills to discern between them.

~ Kenneth Lim, D.Ed

As a student of the Doctor of Education programme at University College Fairview, I've been deeply impressed by the University's dedication to real-world education. The programme is thoughtfully curated for professionals like us, emphasizing hands-on learning, global perspectives, and crafting local solutions for global challenges. The balance between rigorous research and practical application has been a game-changer, enabling me to address contemporary educational issues with confidence. Being a part of the UCF community has been an enriching experience, and I wholeheartedly recommend it to aspiring educators.

~ Samuel Lee Mao Hua, D.Ed

Why is UCF's D.Ed special?

Our D.Ed is a professional doctorate and designed for working professional who have practical experience in their field and want to increase their knowledge, advance their careers, and translate their work experience into a higher position of credibility, leadership, and influence. Our professional doctorate programme can help you learn how to:

- 1 Evaluate the relevance of current and emerging theories and practices within your field related to education.
- 2 Formulate effective solutions to complex, real-world problems common to education and leadership.
- 3 Apply current research to practical problems in the context of 21st century education.
- 4 Design rigorous research that expands the professional body of knowledge in your field.
